

SCHORR AND BROWN IN FIGHT OVER U. S. JOB

Delegation Splits as Chairman Says Taggart Will Win Committee Post

BULLETIN

Frank F. Taggart of Massillon today defeated Walter T. Brown of Toledo for Republican National committee post.

CLEVELAND, June 9.—(UP)—A split between Ohio Republican leaders was brought into the open today as the state's delegates to the national convention held their first caucus to select representatives on the national committee.

For the last two days a "break" between Walter F. Brown, Toledo, present national committeeman, and Ed D. Schorr, Cincinnati, state chairman, has been the talk of the delegation.

"I believe Walter Brown will be defeated for re-election as national committeeman," Schorr predicted. "I am confident my friend, Dick Taggart, has sufficient votes to assure his election."

Brown Confident

However, Brown expressed confidence he would be re-elected.

Frank F. Taggart of Massillon, known as "Dick" to friends, is not a delegate to the convention but is an active Republican worker.

Schorr made his statement just prior to the dinner tendered the Ohio delegation last night by Cuyahoga-co. delegates. It was rumored that his statement followed Brown's refusal to pass out convention tickets through the usual channel of the state committee.

Admitting his differences with Brown, Schorr also said he would seek to have Mrs. Katherine Kennedy Brown of Dayton, national committeewoman, replaced. It was understood that supporters of Taggart might swing their votes to Mrs. Wilma Sinclair Levan of Steubenville, a former national committeewoman.

Linton May Withdraw

James Linton of Columbus, third candidate for committeeman was understood to have scattered support. It was believed he might withdraw from the race.

It was impossible to poll the delegation before the caucus. Brown's forces claimed 27 votes, a bare majority to elect.

KINGSTON

The Philathea Sunday School class of the M. E. church met in a most delightful meeting on Thursday evening May 4. The meeting came to order at 8 o'clock with Mrs. Ida Jones, the president presiding and all singing "What a Friend We Have in Jesus" with Mrs. Mollie Pugh at the piano.

Mrs. Jones read the first thirteen verses from the 13th chapter of Corinthians following with prayer. After singing "Take the Name of Jesus" the secretary, Mrs. Walter Wright read the minutes of the previous meeting. The president read a letter of thanks from the Kreisel family for flowers sent at the time of the death of Mrs. Kreisel. Mrs. Wright read a poem in memory of Mrs. Kreisel. Miss Dorothy Gearhart and John Gearhart entertained with music on the piano and cornet during the social hour. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Walter Wright. Mrs. Eckstein was assisted by Mrs. George Delong, Mrs. Groce Gearhart and Miss Laura Terry served delicious home-made ice cream, nut cookies and ice water to the following members and two guests who were: Mrs. Herman Williams, Mrs. Fred Shaff, and Miss Katherine L. Brundige, Mesdames Mollie Pugh, J. E. Compton, Walter Wright, Della Garrett, L. E. Sims, Katherine Quillen, J. L. Stewart, Charles Roby, Fannie Goth, Georgia Jacobs, Lavina Steele, Emma Miller Ida Jones and Alice Brundige.

Kingston—Mrs. Matthew Mauger is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Pearly Brown and family at Hallsville.

Kingston—The annual Children's Day Exercises of the M. E. church will be presented on Sunday evening, June 14th. Everyone is welcome to attend.

Kingston—The Presbyterian Sunday School will enjoy a picnic on Tuesday, June 16.

Kingston—The Local Woman's Christian Temperance Union Institute will be held on Friday, June 12 at the home of the president, Miss Mary L. Harpster.

Kingston—Word has been received from Miss Bernice Evans, who is enjoying a motor trip to the west coast with Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Simons and son, that they surely enjoyed their visit to the Grand Canyons and visited a friend in Utah. Miss Evans is particularly interested in Indians that live in that section of the United States. They expect to be in Los Angeles soon with motor up the coast and on to Salt Lake City.

Tales

THIS tall tale comes from James Ball, son of the late Anna Ball, and a native son of Walnut-twp, so it must be true:

"A wealthy Texan stopping at the Mayo hotel in Tulsa early this spring, demanded of the bell-boys that they bring every ice-cube they could find up to his room. They obliged. Still, the Texan was not satisfied. He called for the manager, who told the gentleman that he was sorry but there wasn't another ice-cube in the hotel. The manager inquired: 'Wouldn't these be sufficient until time permitted the water to freeze?'"

"Well, I guess this will be enough."

Suddenly, with the aid of a friend, the Texan tossed all the ice-cubes out the window, and said: "Now, I'll know what a Texas hail-storm is like!"

GUARDS CATCH SIX FUGITIVES

10 Remain at Large as Fear of Trouble Spreads

ST. PETER, Minn., June 9.—(UP)—Ten desperate fugitives from the Minnesota state hospital for the criminal insane remained at large today despite efforts of 50 policemen and a company of national guard machine gunners.

Of the 16 who fled the asylum after beating five guards with table legs, two were recaptured quickly, and four others were taken during a widespread hunt yesterday.

None of the recaptured men was armed or offered any resistance. Officers feared, however, that the remaining fugitives might raid secluded farmhouses for weapons and new clothing—if they have not done so already—and prove dangerous if cornered. Among them was Lawrence Devole, former member of the Barker-Karpis gang.

The hunt turned to Swan Lake, west of St. Peter, when sheriff's officers learned six duck hunters' cottages had been invaded and occupied the night after the break.

Ben Drussel and William O'Neill were taken shortly after the escape Sunday night. Don De Largo and David Rhoades were captured at St. James when they tried to hitch-hike. George Tremont was found at St. Ulm and Lawrence Gunderson at Belle Plaine.

Fingerprints Become Aid

BERKELEY, Cal. — (UP)—Finger-printing may enable William Montague, 58, to become eligible for California's proposed old age pension. He was fingerprinted 15 years ago when he applied to the police station for a night's lodging and this constituted the only legal means he had of establishing the length of his residence in California.

"Gang" Tried to Lynch Them

APPARENTLY inspired by the fantastic activities of the Black Legion, a group of young boys "kidnaped" two of their schoolmates and nearly succeeded in lynching one of them in a barn in Detroit, according to police. Joe Ignagni, left, and Albert Valenti, shown above tied and gagged, were rescued only on the arrival of a citizen. One of the three alleged imitators of the Black Legion, rounded up, told police he and his gang had tried to punish the boys "for some things we had against them." The leader added, "We heard a lot about the Black Legion."

Dr. High Denies He Will Be New White House Secretary, Though Close to the President

Much-Mentioned Man Said to Aid on Speeches

BY CHARLES F. STEWART WASHINGTON, —Dr.

Stanley High, frequently mentioned as a possible successor to the late Colonel Louis McHenry Howe as premier secretary to President Roosevelt, is authority for the positive statement that he will not be appointed to any such office.

The doctor, however, evidently is decidedly persona grata at the White House, where his advice appears to be much relied on. It is even rumored that he has had a hand in concocting some recent presidential speeches.

"It doesn't signify a thing," he rejoined, when I asked him the question, "that I'm often at the executive mansion. If it were a fair conclusion that every visitor there is in line for a post as one of Mr. Roosevelt's private secretaries he would have a secretarial staff to wonder at. Yes, I have heard the rumor. It is absolutely without foundation."

STRAIGHT FORWARD

Maybe the president would like to have Dr. High as a private secretary and the doctor does not know it.

Dr. High is as unequivocal an individual as I ever interviewed. I should take his word against any number of rumors. At the same time, I do think he would make a good presidential private secretary.

He obviously has uses to the administration.

He is the inspiration of the Good Neighbor league, based on the Rooseveltian "good neighbor policy."

"I like," said the president, broadcasting last February, "to think of our country as one home, in which the interests of each member are bound up with the happiness of all. . . . I should like to see Associations of Good Neighbors in every town and city and in every rural community of our land."

HIS MOVEMENT

Dr. High undertook the task of establishing just such a multiplicity of associations under the centralized encouragement and administration of the Good Neighbor league.

Clearly it is a first-class New Deal movement.

Another rumor has it that the Democratic national committee enlisted Dr. High to start it. He says not; that it is his own personal detail of campaign activity.

DEMANDS PROOF

Perhaps it is not correct to speak of Dr. High's work as political in character.

He describes the Good Neighbor league as non-partisan.

He approves, indeed, of the Rooseveltian social program.

"But suppose," I suggested, "that the present president's next opponent is socially on a par with Mr. Roosevelt. Then what?"

"Then," said the doctor, "the league is non-partisan. But I must say that, considering the forces which are opposing Mr. Roosevelt, I shall demand from them better evidence of good faith than a mere platform declaration."

"They say, 'We must have equality but not THIS way. We must feed the destitute, but not

THIS way. We must do it so that it won't cost so much.' They nullify their promises with their qualifications."

MODEST OFFICES

Dr. High, as head of the Good Neighbor league, has two modest offices in the Munsey building in Washington, a couple of blocks removed from the Democratic committee's classy quarters in the National Press building.

He is a Methodist doctor of divinity but never was ordained officially as a clergyman. Nevertheless, he filled a pulpit, on part time, as he expresses it, for three years. "They had a vacancy," he explains, "which they asked me to fill and I filled it."

He has been a correspondent at various places around the world, too, for the Christian Science Monitor.

He has been editor likewise for the Christian Herald, a functionary of the Methodist board of foreign missions in China, and he has been the board's secretary in this country.

IN WORLD WAR

Incidentally he was a World war aviator.

Of late years he has been a news broadcaster for the National Broadcasting Co.

His talks have been of the well-fare character—exactly the sort of material to introduce him into Good Neighbor league-ism.

PLANT—ISLAND ROAD

COOL SUMMERS UNTIL 1940 SEEN

DES MOINES, Ia.—(UP)—Farmers of Iowa never have experienced a real drouth, according to Charles D. Reed, U. S. meteorologist.

Even the famous drouth which damaged crops in much of the tall corn state during the Summer of 1934, was a period of "too much heat" rather than "too little rain," Reed's weather charts reveal. During June, July and August of 1934, Iowa received a total of 10.18 inches of precipitation, or 86 per cent of normal.

There were 17 other summers out of 62 on record in which precipitation was less than for 1934 and two years produced only 5 inches of rain during the growing season. Only one of the latter, Reed said, produced a smaller yield of corn than was produced in 1934.

"But Iowa's 1934 summer was the hottest on record," Reed said, "and therein was the cause of the damage to crops."

Temperature Too High

While the 1934 precipitation was only slightly under normal, it was unable to compensate for the temperature which averaged 76.8 degrees, Reed explained. The water needs of plant life are often doubled when temperatures rise 5 degrees above the usual summer scale.

The meteorologist believes that the temperature curve which produced unusual heat during the past several years is due to move downward during the next several growing seasons. Both professional and amateur, long-range forecasters agree that the next three to four years should average below normal in temperature, Reed said.

Shorter Summer Forecast

Notations in weather bureau records as far back as 1932 disclose that Reed then predicted a cycle of cooler summers that by 1939 or 1940 would shorten the growing season to a point where a large portion of the Iowa corn crop will be damaged by frost.

Reed is confident that temperatures rather than the quantity of rainfall is the most important factor in crop development.

To substantiate this belief, Reed points to the fact that in 1933 only 8.1 inches of rain fell in Iowa, as compared to 10.18 in the drouth season of 1934. Yet 1933 produced a bumper corn crop while 1934 was severely damaging to corn, particularly in the southern sections.

The summer of 1935, while averaging nearly a whole degree

Library Not Merely Book Collection

The name of a popular book, "100,000,000 Guinea Pigs" uses a very large number, but counting the 30,000 volumes in the Circleville library is just a good start toward the hundred million (more or less) items available to library patrons.

Current and unbound magazines are not counted as books and there are thousands of them, arranged, classified and stored, on what are now very crowded shelves, in the library. Daily and weekly newspapers are kept on file for some time and serve many useful purposes.

Every mail brings pamphlets, catalogues, and miscellaneous material, with a possible general or special interest that keeps much of this printed or written matter out of the waste basket. The library maintains an information file, almost as quickly accessible as the dictionary, in which pamphlets, leaflets, and clippings are arranged by subject.

Put in Scrapbooks

Some material which has outgrown the information file has been transferred to scrapbooks or as is the case with much of the collection on holidays, stored in boxes or drawers, to be brought out when the proper season arrives.

Maps and pictures used for display purposes in the library are often loaned to schools, churches and organizations. Local artists have found the picture collection useful.

During the World War many newspaper items about Pickaway-co's soldiers, sailors and nurses were saved and now fill three large scrap books. The library also has an index, made during the war years of the men and women in the various fields of war service.

Every scrap of information about Pickaway-co, its men and women, its industries, resources, buildings, schools, churches, organizations, and all of the matters which go to make up its history, are eagerly sought for preservation in the library. The program of a military ball in 1899 and a number of commencement programs of the 1870s, 1880s, and 1890s have recently been received. It is hoped that other souvenirs of the school days of the 78 classes, which have graduated from the Circleville High School, may be added.

material are many and in most cases without cost to the library. Friends of the library who know about this department are most helpful and liberal in their additions to it; much advertising material from railroads, bus lines, travel bureaus, manufacturers, insurance companies, public service corporations, and others is found useful. Departments of government, universities, institutions, educational and social organizations and all publicity projects are liberal with their contributions in response to requests from the library.

Besides the World War index, the library has recently received two other indexes of great local interest and value. These are a card index of all Pickaway-co persons mentioned in the three volumes of local history, Van Cleef's History of Pickaway-co, published in 1906; Chapman Bros. Portrait & Biographical record of Fayette, Pickaway and Madison Counties, 1892; and Williams Bros. History of Franklin and Pickaway Counties, 1880; and an index of inscriptions from grave-stones in private and public burial grounds of Pickaway county. These two were compiled by Pickaway Plains Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

F. D. R. TRAVELS WEST; POLITICAL TALKS SCOUTED

Crowds Gather at Rail Stations to Greet President and Party

ABOARD ROOSEVELT SPECIAL EN ROUTE HOT SPRINGS, Ark., June 9.—(UP)—While Republicans gathered in Cleveland to nominate his opponent for the presidential elections, President Roosevelt sped through the Democratic south today on a "friendly visit" to the southwest.

Crowds gathered at stations through Tennessee to greet the president and local party leaders boarded the train for brief conferences. Mr. Roosevelt left Washington last night on a trip that will take him 4,000 miles, largely through Democratic territory, during the next week.

Rallies Arranged
Three major addresses and several informal platform appearances in Arkansas, Texas, Indiana and Kentucky will be strictly non-political, White House attaches emphasized. Democrats in the states planned to greet the president, however.

While the president's speeches are expected to be non-political, his visits were regarded as of considerable political significance despite the fact most of the section to be visited is considered safely Democratic in the national elections.

Plans were made to receive Democratic leaders at almost every stop. The President is expected to receive first-hand reports of political plans from these delegations.

In the presidential party were several prominent southwesterners. Those aboard included Chairman Jesse Jones of the RFC; Karl A. Crowley, postoffice solicitor; Charles A. Jones of the HOLC and Brooks Hays, Democratic national committeeman from Arkansas.

Before leaving Washington Mr. Roosevelt spent a busy day preparing his speeches and conferring with Democratic senate and house leaders on tax legislation. He received assurance tax difficulties would be ironed out to permit adjournment of congress by the end of next week.

Also with Mr. Roosevelt were both Arkansas senators, Joseph T. Robinson, senate majority leader, and Hattie Caraway. Robinson comes up for re-election this fall against formidable opposition. The president is expected to give him a boost.

Councilman Frank Marion suggested the city install the first sidewalk at the city building. His suggestion was referred to the committee studying necessary improvements on the property, for a report to council at its next meeting. The Board of Education will be consulted concerning walks at the school buildings and the commissioners will be asked about improving the walk at the Memorial hall.

Roosevelt's Kin to Help Alf Landon

Mrs. Alsop is Expected to Second Nomination; Other Cleveland Notes

CLEVELAND, June 9.—(UP)—Mrs. Joseph Alsop, of Connecticut, a first cousin of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and a fifth cousin of the president, will second the nomination of Gov. Alf M. Landon at the Republican national convention.

She was a bride's maid at the Roosevelt wedding. Since they've been at the White House, she has visited them.

"They're my very good friends," she said, "but I disagree with them in politics."

CLEVELAND, June 9.—(UP)—J. Henry Smythe, Jr., the one man slogan factory, was offering a new line of merchandise to the Republican national convention today. Samples:

"Let's make it a Republican Landonslide."

"The New Deal is a mis-deal."

"The Republicans have used axes for taxes."

He has composed thousands of slogans. One of his master pieces, used during the war, was:

"A bond is a prayer that you send over there."

CLEVELAND, June 9.—(UP)—Clevelanders line the curbs in front of convention hotels, eyeing the delegates. One hotel is particularly popular. It houses (1) a delegate from Hawaii who wears 19 birds of paradise feathers in his hat, (2) a delegate from Wyoming who wears a 10 gallon gray beaver hat.

CLEVELAND, June 9.—(UP)—Herbert Hoover's secretary of war, Patrick J. Hurley, was asked if he belonged to the "Stop-Landon" movement.

"No," he said, "I belong to the stop Roosevelt crowd."

CLEVELAND, June 9.—(UP)—A discouraged convention onlooker was former Rep. William D. Upshaw, a Georgia Democrat and a dry.

"The Republicans have a fine chance to win if they adopt a dry plank," he said. "But I know they won't do it."

Upshaw has just written a book entitled, "Bombshells For Wets and Reds—the Twin Devils of America."

CLEVELAND, June 9.—(UP)—The slogan of supporters of Gov. Harry Nice of Maryland, who has his state's votes pledged to him and would like to trade them for the vice-presidential nomination, is:

"Be Nice to Nice."

A Common Sense Message to War Veterans About the Bonus

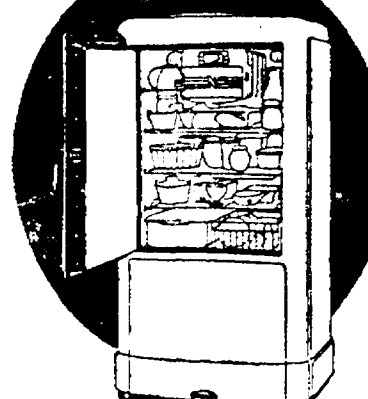

NO ONE likes to be told how to spend his money, and yet veterans will be appealed to from every angle by those who have anything to sell—anything from sox to gold bricks.

The wise veteran is not the man who throws away his bonus money on worthless goods—nor the man who hoards it. It's the man who gets real value when he does spend his money.

And what single thing could bring more real value into a home than a 1936 Kelvinator—the outstanding refrigerator of the year? We urge veterans to see the new Kelvinators and then judge whether there is a better method of investing a small part of their bonus.

Kelvinator is not only the most beautiful refrigerator you ever saw, but it has everything you've always wanted in the way of convenience.

Only Kelvinator gives you a Built-in Thermometer, a Certificate of Low Operating Cost and a 5-Year Protection Plan. It is just as easy to buy as an ordinary refrigerator.

COUNTY, STATE IMPROVE ROAD

Relief Labor to Be Used on Rural Highway

Commissioners signed an agreement Monday to cooperate with the state highway department under the Federal Highway act for the improvement of 3.227 miles of the Palestine-Williamsport road, extending from Route 56 at Five Points toward Era.

The road will be graded and graveled under contract with relief labor. A bridge over Buskirk's run will be constructed at the expense of the county.

The improvement was presented to the commissioners by James Oberlander, assistant engineer of the highway division office, Delaware. This project is the first of its type in the county.

There's always the bright side. You can't poke the same finger into an electric fan twice.

BUYER'S INTEREST

THE way to build up a successful business, is to see to it that every purchaser of goods gets something which he is pleased and satisfied with.

If you go into stores in a large city, the idea usually seems to be to make a sale at all costs. The salespeople do not expect to see you again personally, so they think now is their only chance to sell you something. If they haven't got just what you want, they try to work something else off on you.

When you go into the stores of Circleville you get a different reception. They know that they have to please you, or you won't come back. If they haven't just what you want, they are not anxious to sell something else, as they fear you will not be pleased.

MARCHING YOUTH

YOUTH never has lacked energy; proudly youth has laid claim to it in every age and clime, and oldsters might just as well admit it. Also, if the oldsters are fair, and most of them try to be, they will concede that the young men and young women of today are banding themselves in ways of which other generations did not even dream. Youth's tendency to unify effort in one "cause or another is not restricted to any single nation; it appears to flourish under the banners of democracy, of Sovietism, of Fascism. Definitely it is a force to be reckoned with.

Perhaps the basis of it all may be found in the realization of the value of teamplay, that well-directed teamplay which has accounted for victories on numberless fields of worth-while sport. The Boy and Girl Scout movements have contributed notably to it.

Advantages flowing from such modernities are, of course, for all to enjoy; youth, however, stands out in showing itself quick to recognize and act on them. Not solely in the political role is youth recognizing and seeking opportunity; that is important and its importance is manifest, but it does not pre-empt activity. A few examples will suffice. The conservation camps emphasize the lore and love of nature. All over Europe student "work camps" spring up; in half a dozen or more countries these camps are open to American students who wish to widen their experiences. Members of the editorial staffs of several American college papers will join their colleagues from eleven countries in conferences at Geneva in Italy. Dozens of institutes for young people interested in co-operatives of various sorts, from recreational co-operatives to farm bureau and consumers' co-operatives, will be conducted in the United States this summer; the enrollment in many of these institutions is expected to double that of previous years.

World At A Glance

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

Cleveland enjoys the distinction of being the first city to entertain a post-war convention with legal drinks.

Not that the earlier ones really were dry, but they were supposed to be.

The Republican convention of 1924, when Calvin Coolidge was named for the presidency, also was a Cleveland affair, and in the same auditorium as this year's.

The nomination was made in a ringing prohibition address in the course of which the expression, "The law reigns," was used again and again.

Now, about half a city block from that convention hall was a neat little speakeasy, where customers could and did sit, sipping their hooch and listening to the nominating orator's words as they were broadcast by radio.

DRY?—HA!

Prohibition officialdom swore, in advance of the 1928 conventions, that they actually would dry Kansas City and Houston up, and thought maybe they could do it concentrating their full national strength upon those two spots. Well, I did a bit of investigating.

My estimate was that there were 75 speakeasies in K. C.

At this one of the local papers was much insulted. It said editorially that that city was as well supplied with speakeasies as any town of its size—at least twice or thrice 75. And it argued that I should have counted drug stores, too.

NOT ARID HERE, EITHER

Houston had a whole row of drinking joints right across the street from the auditorium.

There, as in Cleveland in 1924, it was possible to quaff a glass of moonshine on the front porch of one of these places (they even served the stuff outside, in plain view of passersby) and follow the convention speeches at the same time.

The Houston oratory wasn't dry, however. That was a wet convention—the one which nominated Al Smith.

Chicago, of course, was simply dripping, as always in 1932.

PRICES HIGH IN CLEVELAND

Yet inebriety in Cleveland this year, with drinks legalized, has seemed to me less prevalent than

I have observed at prohibition-day political gatherings.

For one thing, the prices are almost ruinous. They are everywhere, for that matter.

Forty cents for a small shot of indifferent liquor, plus a sales tax on top of it, is too much for the average convention delegate's pocketbook to stand very long.

This as compared with a maximum of 15 cents for a similar dose in the pre-prohibition era. In fact, it is only 10 cents less, not to mention the sales tax, than ordinarily was charged during the prohibition period.

NO FUN ANY MORE

Besides, there is less fun in walking up to an open-and-above-board bar and buying a perfectly lawful drink than there was in sneaking into a dirty hole-in-the-wall and enjoy the sensation of fracturing the United States constitution.

Cleveland's, Kansas City's Houston's and Chicago's speakeasies were packed to suffocation in 1924, 1928 and 1932.

This year my observation has been that their barrooms have been the least crowded spots in Cleveland's hotels.

CONVENTION RANDOM JOTTINGS

CLEVELAND—Random jottings of a roaming reporter as the Grand Old Party stages its quadrennial version of the Greatest Show on Earth:

Bill Borah has been grumbling backstage, more bellicose than ever against the Old Guard. He thinks the bunch that ruled Harding and Coolidge are now dominating Landon.

Probably Bill still remembers the convention of 1924 — also held in Cleveland — when he had a chance to be Vice-President. Coolidge had been nominated on the first ballot. Hours of secret debate on his running-mate followed. Finally Postmaster General Harry New told the party bosses: "The kind of vice president you want was crucified 1900 years ago."

In the end they picked Charley Dawes. But at that moment William M. Butler, Coolidge's manager, informed: "I have been talking by telephone to the White House. We must nominate Borah for Vice President."

Icy silence. Butler turned to Andrew W. Mellon. "Mr. Secretary," he asked, "what do you think of Borah?"

"I never think of him unless someone mentions his name," replied the greatest Secretary of the Treasury since Alexandria Hamilton.

Question-Mark Hoover

Everyone is speculating about Hoover. What will he do, is the big question-mark.

Contrast this to the last Republican convention at Chicago. On the opening day no one mentioned him. Not a picture of him in the convention hall.

Diplomatic Observer

The man who is enjoying this convention most is Oswaldo Aranha, forthright Ambassador of Brazil.

Aranha has a different way of nominating Presidents in his country. He picks them himself. The present President, Vargas, was put in office by Aranha six years ago after a brief and bloody civil war. Aranha spent one year in the saddle organizing that war, was wounded five times, still carries a bullet in his shoulder.

Wonder's What's Become of . . . ?

A lot of familiar figures at past Republican conventions are missing today.

There is HIRAM JOHNSON of California, for years a stormy figure in Republican politics. He was offered the Vice Presidency with Harding, but turned it down. It would have made him president instead of Coolidge. Hiram now has the blessing of the New Deal.

Then there is FRANK O. LOWDEN, now 75 years old and living in quiet retirement on his model farm at Oregon, Ill.

General Leonard Wood, whose deadlock with Lowden and Johnson caused the hopeless deadlock of 1920, is dead now. So is Harding, who finally won out. At 11 a. m. Harding told friends he was quitting politics to devote his time to newspaper work. At 6:15 p. m. he was nominated.

And CHARLES EVANS HUGHES, for years a familiar figure at Republican conventions! Remember the letter he wrote Woodrow Wilson, resigning from the Supreme Court in order to run against him in 1916? It merely said:

"To the President: I hereby resign the office of Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States. I am, sir, respectfully yours, Charles Evans Hughes."

Almost as brief as the belated letter of congratulations which Hughes finally sent Wilson after Wilson's victory.

Joan Spencer, a small town school teacher, recently disappointed in love, engaged as secretary to Julian Gracie, noted playboy. She begins to enjoy her new life immensely at Julian's luxurious summer home where she now lives. Sheila True, an actress and close friend of Julian's, is the only disturbing factor. Sheila obviously is jealous of the playboy's pretty secretary. At a house party Joan sits out a dance with Pierre Durand, Sheila's new flame. Alex Garrity tells her she had better beware of Sheila.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 14

ALEX PILOTTED Joan from the dance floor through the French windows and out onto the porch. When Joan would have sat in one of the big chairs, he kept a firm hold on her arm and led her out to the road.

"I don't believe in endangering the customers," he said, "and I'm afraid you are going to be a problem. But I'm quite serious, little one, when I tell you that you are playing with dynamite when you tamper with any of Sheila's property, such as Durand."

"Perhaps you can enlighten me as to where her fences are," Joan put in with some asperity.

She could see his grin in the darkness. "Anything that's attractive. She hasn't noticed me yet and I'm very attractive, don't you think?"

"Oh, very!" Joan answered obligingly. "Then you have noticed it? Well, how about working on me? I'm a fine upstanding, still-quite-poor composer. By the way, that is Durand's line, too. But he's arrived. Not that I'm not going to!"

Joan said that she was sure he would and switched the conversation to his work without much success. "Seriously, Joan, I don't know you very well but I think you're a swell gal and you deserve a good man like me."

"Goodness," Joan made a pretense of utter surprise, "do you mean marriage, sir?"

"Well . . . er . . . I can't get married now, Joan, but if you and I . . ."

"Okay, Alex, I was only playing. Besides I don't ever want to get married. I mean, the way I feel now." Joan didn't mean to say anything of the kind. She was just like any other woman and much smarter than most of them. She knew that every woman wanted to get married, that being lonely was the most dreadful burden that a young woman could bear. But she didn't want to marry anyone whom she didn't love and since she had loved only one, she had no way of knowing whether it was possible to love another man.

"You don't mean that, Joan. Maybe you mean to mean it . . . or maybe you mean something else. Girls like you have lots of romantic ideas tucked away under level heads."

"What kind of romantic ideas?" she asked casually.

"Oh, things that secretaries to famous playwrights might think about. I think Sheila is quite a bit of a romantic and I wonder if she has any of those ideas tucked away under her level head."

"Now you're talking nonsense!" Joan said, glad that Alex couldn't see her face. His words had been darts that struck home. So, she hadn't gotten Julian's attraction out of her mind!

"All right, I'm wrong, but you don't have to go into a cantor over it. Let's stroll and enjoy the night."

"It must be after 12. I've got to go back."

"How about an early drive tomorrow morning with me? I haven't seen you all week and you seem to be doing a disappearing act when the customers are around."

"Your whole day is planned for tomorrow but I'll see you, Alex. You'll probably be so tired of looking at me, you'll wish you'd stayed home."

"No chance, Joan. You're easy on the eyes but tough on the heart."

"Thanks for those kind words. See you tomorrow."

Sunday morning Joan looked at

her program. Lunch at the Brasserie Lipp, club for 12. That meant four cars and the station wagon to carry golf clubs. Well, she'd ordered those. The party would spend the afternoon there and return by six. Sherman Jones was giving a cocktail party, at his place two miles away, for Julian's guests. That meant they would not return until at least nine. Joan had relieved Mrs. Henderson of the task of planning meals and there were many details to be arranged.

Joan rode in the station wagon with Williams and was jolly glad to do it for the only other seat was in Julian's roadster where Sheila, inappropriately but decoratively gowned in printed chiffon, had already ensconced herself.

"Who's playing in our foursome?" Grace demanded when lunch was over.

"Harriet, Francine, you and . . . let's see. How about you, Sheila?" Tommy Harris asked, eyeing Sheila's floating chiffons and spike-heeled sandals. "Bring along any golf togs?"

"I should say not!" Sheila snuggled down deeper in her wicker chair. "I think golf is simply barbarous."

"It's all right with me if you can find any way to keep from being bored. We'll be out a couple of hours."

"I won't be bored, Pierre"—Sheila cast a lingering glance toward the Frenchman—"is going to take me out in a punt."

"Now isn't that cute? And where is he going to find one?" Tommy asked.

Julian intercepted Sheila's next remark. "I think Sheila is quite wise. She means she is going out on the lake. Come along, Pierre, I'll arrange for you to get a canoe at the boathouse."

"Never mind, Julian. I know where the boathouse is." It was amazing how quickly she could move without seeming to hurry. Joan was beginning to appreciate the art that had placed Sheila True at the top of Broadway's list of favorite actresses. She never did anything obviously. Even now when it was apparent that she did not want Julian—that she wanted to be alone with Pierre. She did it so gracefully with an understanding look, a touch of her hand on Julian's sleeve, that he was almost sure she was not resigning. He plans to remove to Cincinnati.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

A STRATEGIC RIDDLE

A GENUINE two-suit, with a 7-6 division between two suits is very rare. With high honors in both suits the hand should be worth at least a small slam. Naturally the holder expects to show both suits. When partner shows one of the two suits it may be hard for the two-suit holder to make partner realize that two other suits are void. To accomplish this South had to resort to tactics that presented a riddle for partner to solve, however he did so, much to his credit, as will be seen.

Bidding went: South, 2-Diamonds; North, 2-Clubs; East, 2-Spades; South, 4-Spades, to show no losers and great help for partner's suit; North, 5-Clubs, hoping that he was doing the right thing; East, 5-Hearts; South, 6-Clubs, to again show no losers in opponent's suits, giving North a real riddle to solve.

On its face, South's bidding showed no losers in either major suit. A diamond ruff by North was all that East also must mean that South saw not more than one possible loser in the entire holdings of the joint 26 cards of his side. For all South knew, North's single quick trick shown by his club card might be either in spades or hearts, and not in clubs, and certainly South did not know that his partner was void of diamonds. With the Ace of clubs and ability to ruff any losing diamond held by South, it seemed to North that there should be a grand slam, so he bid 7-Clubs, that East promptly doubled, with neither vulnerable.

Not being able to lead a diamond, after South's call of that suit, and not wanting to open either of his major tenaces suits, East led his lone club. Dummy's 8 held the trick. The Ace of diamonds was led. Declarer, let go a spade. He ruffed a lead of dummy's lowest diamond and East had to lose his K of diamonds. Declarer's 9 of trumps was overtaken with dummy's Q. The Q of diamonds was led. Declarer let go his lowest heart. All adversely held trumps were out, so North felt safe. At the sixth trick the 4 of diamonds was led and ruffed with declarer's last club, but that did not matter in the least. Every one of the remaining 7 cards is dummy—3 long diamonds and 4 long clubs—were good. All declarer had to do was to lead either a spade or a heart and have dummy ruff. He spread his hand, claiming the fulfilled grand slam contract, doubled.

Had East known what was to happen he would have saved many points, by bidding a grand slam in either spades or hearts. One club, one diamond, one heart, and one spade ruff by North was all that East would have had to lose.

Automobile Door Handle Cause of Accidents

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

IN LINE with the campaign for safety in automobile driving, it is well to call attention to the various means by which automobile accidents are caused, and the automobile parts involved. Many of these accidents are minor, but at any time they may become serious, or even fatal.

"Topping," in 1933, drew attention to a peculiar accident called "traffic fracture of the elbow."

This injury to the details of the driver whose protruding left elbow is struck by a passing vehicle. The injury almost invariably results in serious disability.

The projecting objects from the automobile are the cause of a particular group of accidents.

The automobile door handle is one of these projecting objects which has had cluster about it a peculiar group of injuries. Sometimes these door handle injuries are not only serious, but bizarre. For instance, a man admitted to an emergency hospital had the history that while riding a motorcycle he had collided with an automobile, and the door handle of the car had been driven through the handle of his door. It had broken off cleanly from its attachment at the door. Prompt operation saved his life and today he is able to work, although he has lost the sight of one eye.

Walker Struck by Door

Another peculiar case was that of a man who was walking along the highway on the left side of the road, facing traffic. A car passed him waving a door handle. As it did the door handle broke loose, struck him, and embedded itself in his arm, breaking off at its attachment to the door. The X-ray showed the door handle embedded in the bone.

There are a number of reports in medical literature of automobile door handle injuries. Details of these cases are as follows: "As a row of passing cars cannot be convinced one of the potential danger of this projecting piece of metal. In the recent streamlined models is to be seen many a door handle that is little short of a spear—truly a vicious weapon directed toward the victim who may chance to be in its path."

In the engineering of automobiles it is suggested that two improvements be made in the handle: first, a handle without sharp projections, such as the oval ones on older models, and second, the handle that lies either close against or is counterunk within the side of the door.

Where, like lost coinage from some miser's store,
The golden dandelions more and more

Glow, as the warm sun kisses them again!
For this is May! who with a daisy chain

Leads on the laughing Hours;
For now is o'er
Long winter's trance. No longer

His forest-wrenching blasts. The hopeful swain,
Along the furrow, sings behind his team;

Loud pipes the redbreast-troubador

And vocal all the morning

Cooes ring;
More blue the skies in lucid lake-lets gleam;
And the glad earth, caressed by

Murmuring showers,
Wakes like a bride, to deck herself

RECORDS OF DECEASED OFFICIAL ARE APPROVED

Report of the special examination of the Darby-twp justice of peace office during the period from June 14, 1931 to Feb. 9, 1936, was received by Auditor Forrest Short Tuesday morning from the auditor of state.

Lemuel P. Sherman, examiner, reported records of the auditor's office showed all fines collected had been promptly paid into the county treasury and judgments and costs in civil cases appeared to be promptly accounted.

The examination was made after the death of William Baughan. He had served several terms and has just entered on a new term prior to his death on Feb. 9. The township trustees appointed Dennis Kauts to succeed Mr. Baughan.

MARIAN MARTIN PATTERN

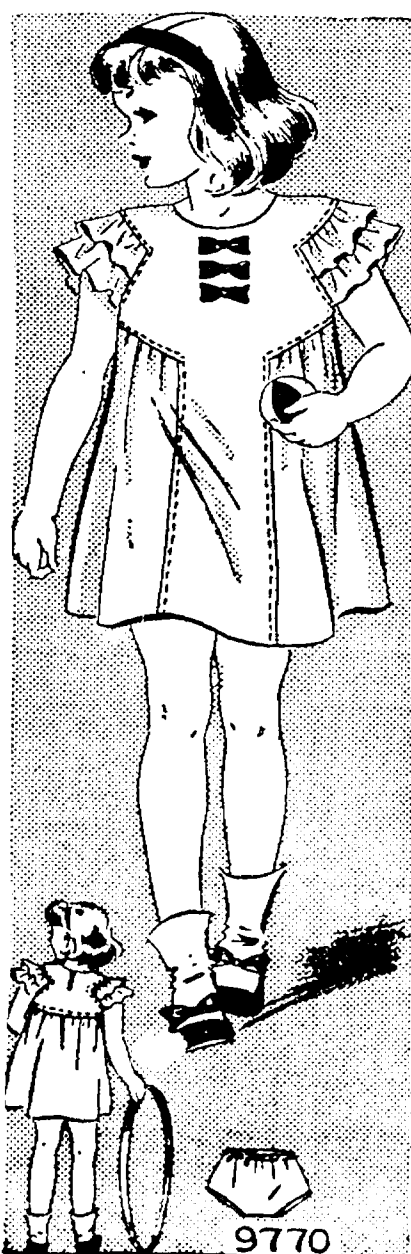

MARIAN MARTIN CHIC FOR A YOUNG "PARTY GIRL"

PATTERN 9770

Very young "party girls" are as dainty and feminine as their smart mothers these days—and don't we all wish we were "two to ten" when we see an adorable young frock like the dainty one sketched today? The best dressed youngster at any party will be the one who wears this charmingly be-ruffled model with its three saucy bows! They form a grand contrast in perky grosgrain ribbon or velvet especially if the frock is of sheer dotted swiss or crisp organdy! Little Sister will love the brief, full skirt with its smart center panel cut in one piece with the simple bodice. This captivating frock may be easily made, for the Marian Martin Diagrammed Sew Chart is so detailed that the frock and matching panties are cut and sewn in a jiffy!

Pattern 9770 may be ordered only in sizes 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10. Size 4 requires 2 1/4 yards 36 inch fabric.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for MARIAN MARTIN pattern. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, the STYLE NUMBER and SIZE of each pattern. Send for our MARIAN MARTIN SUMMER PATTERN BOOK—just $1.00. See what's latest for women of every age, in every fascinating summer role—the stay-at-home, the vacation or the bride, the deb partying, tiny tots romping in the sun! Radio Spelling Contest To Be Exposition Feature

High School Students of Dozen States to Take Part in Cleveland During Summer; Airline Notes

A RADIO SPELLING bee which is expected to draw thousands of high school students to more than a dozen stations in six states is being arranged by the Lake Erie exposition in Cleveland.

The spellers will do their stuff in two half-hour programs per week over each station. The result will be two winners from each studio, to be brought to the exposition for the finals, July 24-25.

Stations WJW, Akron; WHBC, Canton; WBAI, Cincinnati; WAU, Columbus; WSPD, Toledo; and WKBN, Youngstown, in Ohio, and WLEU, Erie, in Pennsylvania, are reported among those stations participating.

A SEMI-STUDIO, operated by the national government, is planned for the new Interior Department building in Washington.

The plant, which would be the first government radio station, would have no other equipment than a set of microphones and switchboards with which it could connect local studios.

The station would be for the use of all federal agencies.

A RETURN to popularity among broadcasters and sponsors of the hour radio show is seen in the increasing demand for time spots of that length for next season.

Popularity of such hour-long shows as Fred Allen, Rudy Vallee, "Show Boat," Major Bowes' Amateurs and several of the recent full-hour straight dramatic shows.

However, not all radio stars relish the longer time, believing a half hour sufficient for their types of program. These stars probably will continue a half-hour basis.

NOTES: Two screen comedies will soon appear as guest stars on Old Maestro Ben Bernie's program. They are Zasu Pitts, June 16, and Patsy Kelly, June 30.

Great news for kids: "The Wizard of Oz" may soon be on the air as a series. . . . That three-month Bing Crosby vacation begins June 25. . . . Phil Baker now calls Beetle, his ghostly heckler, the Missing Link of the Columbia Station.

Contessa Marconi, wife of the inventor of radio, will be heard over the air June 15, as a guest speaker on a program, 4 p. m., E.S.T., over the NBC-WJZ hookup. . . . The same day Fibber McGee and Molly get Ted Weems' orchestra for their program. . . . That Smithsonian institute educational series will continue Sundays until Aug. 23. The series is built around objects in the museum. . . . The networks will, of course, carry the notification ceremonies for President Franklin D. Roosevelt in Franklin Field, Philadelphia, June 27. That's a Saturday night.

VIRGINIA BRUCE STARS

FOR CROSBY THURSDAY

A screen star who has played the role of Jenny Lind, one of the world's outstanding concert pianists, and a lively comedian have been billed by Bing Crosby for the Music Hall on Thursday, June 11. The three are Virginia Bruce, lovely blonde film actress, Ernest Hutcheson, and Bert Wheeler.

With Arkansas' drawing storyteller, Bob Burns, and Jimmy Dorsey's orchestra these guest stars will be at the microphone at 9 p. m. EST for the broadcast over a WEAF-NBC network.

Miss Bruce was Jenny Lind in "The Mighty Barnum" and herself is a singer of charm. In the Crosby show she will be heard in a song and interview with Bing.

Hutcheson has played all over the world in solo concerts and also as soloist with the leading symphony orchestra of the United States and Europe. For the broadcast he has selected a group of his favorite piano classics.

Wheeler, half of the screen's popular team of Wheeler and Wolsey, will vie with Bob Burns for comedy honors for the night.

BERLE SIGNS FOR THREE MORE VALLEE PROGRAMS

Milton Berle, the comic who has been heard on Rudy Vallee's Variety Hour for the last three weeks, has been signed for three more weeks beginning with the broadcast over a WEAF-NBC network at 7 p. m. EST on Thursday, June 11. The lineup for next week's broadcast includes besides Berle, Henry Hull, the distinguished character actor of stage and screen; and Muriel Dickson, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company.

Hull will be heard in the leading role of a dramatic sketch on the Vallee program, which marks one of his rare radio appearances since his smash success in "Tobacco Road" on Broadway and later in the films.

Muriel Dickson, an English singer, was first introduced to the radio audience in the United States on the Variety Hour although she had previously sung here with the D'Oyly Carte Gilbert and Sullivan Company. This Spring she was signed by the Metropolitan Opera Company for the special popular price season.

HEGELE BLANKS GIVEN OIL NINE WITH TWO HITS

Circleville Oil Hurler Slugs Home Run and Fans Many of Opposition

Bill Hegeler of the Circleville Oils had a big time Monday evening in helping his team defeat the Given Oils 11 to 0 in a softball game.

Hegeler slugged out a home run, he gave only two hits, and fanned at least 14 of the Given batters. His hurling performance was the best turned in this season.

The Oils had no trouble with the Given hurler smacking out safe hit after safe hit. Bob Jones, usually reliable, was touched up in rough style.

In addition to Hegeler's home run, Irv Trimmer, first baseman, smacked one.

Cities Service Oils and Eshelman Feeds are on the boards for a loop game this evening.

WOODDELL HITS SALE OF ILLEGAL FISH IN STATE

COLUMBUS, June 9.—(UP)—L. A. Wooddell, state conservation commissioner, said today that there would be no let-up in the efforts of the division to prevent possession and sale of fish which are below the legal size limit.

"The state is acting to protect the fishing industry and will continue to do so," he said.

Wooddell said chief offenders were commercial fishing interests along Lake Erie.

About This And That In Many Sports

Managers to Meet

That forfeited game last week in which the Given Oils and Eshelman Feeds tangled will be aired tonight when the league managers meet at the softball field after the game—George E. Hammel, league president, has called the meeting.

The Given team claims the game should not have been forfeited although they refused to go to their positions after Umpire Cum Robinson offered a compromise ruling.

Managers are expected to be on hand, also, to help put up a fence around the outfield to protect a garden.

All Millers Clout

All the rulings of Judge Bramham, Red Trautman or Mussolini could not help the Columbus Red Birds when they play the Minneapolis Millers—Any member of the Bush crew is capable of breaking up a ball game—Usually it is Holland, Arlett, Pfeiffer, Gaffke or Browne; Monday the pitcher, Belve Bean, slugged out the hits that drove Allyn Stout from the hill with six runs in the first frame.

Must Obtain Dizzy

The Red Birds now can have help anytime they want it because Judge Bramham has ruled the May 15 deadline for a parent club to aid a minor league outfit illegal.

If Branch Rickey wants to send Dizzy Dean to Columbus to hurl the last month of the season there is no minor league law to keep him from it.

Dean Versus Grove?

It would be very pleasing to the fan to see Dizzy Dean and Lefty Grove tangle in the world's series—Dean has won 11 ball games and Grove has turned back the enemy nine times already this season.

The Cards seem to be heading home but the Sox must overcome the Yankee lead before they can hop into the top spot.

Reds Bear Down

It seems funny the way Cincinnati's Redlegs play ball—They bump off the New York Giants but fall before the Boston Bees and the Philadelphia Nationals.

They must bear down against the Terry-men much more than they do against the clubs of lower classification.

Brevity Goes Lame

Too bad for Brevity—The horse, favored to win the Derby, then the Preakness, then a half dozen other races, is out for the year—His owners have run him lame trying to win one of those events in which he was favored—Brevity didn't win a major race all year.

LIGHT-HEAVY CHAMP DEFEATS SWEDISH ACE

NEW YORK, June 9.—(UP)—John Henry Lewis, light-heavyweight champion, last night won an easy 10-round decision over John Anderson of Sweden. Anderson was game, and stood toe-to-toe and slugged it out with Lewis, but usually came out second best. It was an over eight non-title affair, Lewis weighing 180; Anderson, 176½.

YESTERDAY'S HERO: Lovill (Chubby) Dean of the Philadelphia Athletics who came through with a double, his fourth successive hit as a pinch batter, to save a ball game.

CHICAGO SPORTS EDITOR DIES AFTER OPERATION

CHICAGO, June 9.—(UP)—Howard Mann, 58, sports editor of the Chicago Daily News since 1929, died last night from complications following abdominal operations.

Mann was born in Cleveland, and attended Keyon college, Gambier, Ohio, from which he graduated in 1900. He wrote the lyrics for the Kenyon alma mater song, recently named among the 10 best college songs in the country.

He was a feature syndicate writer for the Cleveland Plain Dealer before coming to Chicago. He was sports editor of the Chicago Evening Post until 1929.

BUDDY KNOX VICTOR

DAYTON, June 9.—(UP)—Buddy Knox, Dayton heavyweight and a finalist last winter in the "white hope" tournament sponsored by the Chicago stadium, scored a two round knockout over Harold Anderson, Flint, Mich., here last night. In the semi-final bout, Chuck Grundish, Detroit, won an eight round decision from Bobby Kraft, Dayton.

New Dean Reaches Baseball Stardom

NEW YORK, June 9.—(UP)—A new star called Lovill (Chubby) Dean joined the glittering Dizzy and Dazzy constellation today. Chubby is pinch-hitter extraordinary of the Philadelphia Athletics.

Fresh from the campus of Duke university, he joined Connie Mack's club during training at Fort Myers this spring. He made a great showing down there, but the master-minding Mack hasn't been able to decide whether he wants to make an infielder or an outfielder out of him. So far he has warned the bench except for an inning or so at first base and pinch-hitting roles.

Dean has either won or saved five games directly, getting nine hits—four doubles and five singles—to drive in 11 runs in 22 times at bat. He was a pitcher down at Duke, but he is hitting the ball at a 409 clip for the Athletics. And every one of his safeties have come in "the clutch," when he was pinch-hitting for some one else.

Hits in Pinches

Yesterday he saved the A's game with the Chicago White Sox, coming through with a two bagger with two on base in the ninth. The blow brought both of them home to deadlock the count 4-all and score the winning run in the 10th. It marked the fourth consecutive time that Dean came through in the pinch when the chips were down.

The New York Yankees smashed out a 12 to 3 decision over the St. Louis Browns to increase their American league lead to three games. Di Maggio with a homer, triple and single and Gehrig with a homer, double and single placed the Yankee 16- hit attack. They drove in eight runs.

The second-place Boston Red Sox divided a twin-bill with the Detroit Tigers, winning the first 6 to 3 with the world champions taking the finale 12 to 7. Lefty Grove scored his ninth win in the opener as Jimmy Fox hit his 14th homer of the year. Elden Auker was the winning pitcher in the nightcap.

In the National league the leading St. Louis Cardinals—who were idle—gained a half-game as a result of the Giants loss to the Cincinnati Reds, 7 to 3. Paul Derringer scored his sixth victory, scattering 10 hits.

MONTANEZ WHIPS KLICK TO NEAR TITLE MATCH

NEW YORK, June 9.—(UP)—Pedro Montanez, Puerto Rican lightweight today appeared headed straight for a title bout with Champion Tony Canzoneri or Barney Ross, king of the welters.

The little brown-skinned Montanez scored his most important victory, and 16th consecutive American win, against Frankie Klick before 15,000 persons here last night.

Klick failed to live up to his name as a "spoiler" and was on the verge of being knocked out three times in the 10-round affair. Montanez floored the Californian for counts of nine twice in the third and fourth rounds. In the seventh, however, Klick opened a cut on Montanez' brow, but the little Puerto Rican wiped the blood away with his gloves and continued to slug away.

The United Press score sheet gave Montanez seven rounds; Klick, two—the seventh and eighth; and the first, even. Montanez weighed 134½; Klick, 133½.

TALOS AND MEWHORT HONORED BY BISHOPS

DELAWARE, June 9.—(UP)—Honorary captains for Ohio Wesleyan teams in four spring sports were announced here today by Athletic Director George Gauthier.

Ernie Talos, Cleveland, and Don Mewhort, Toledo, were named co-captains in baseball; Fred Duncan, Oak Park, Ill., the track leader; Art Russell, Youngstown, tennis; and Andy Gordon, Sandusky, golf.

All except Gordon will be graduated this year. Gordon is a sophomore.

BREWERS GAIN ON KASEYS AS INDIANS MUFF

BY UNITED PRESS

Milwaukee recouped earlier losses in an eastern invasion yesterday by taking advantage of Indianapolis errors and winning a game 12 to 2. The association leaders drew away from Kansas City, the team they recently kicked from the top spot.

Clyde Hatter's pitching was a major factor in the Brewers victory over the Indians. Hatter gave six hits while striking out ten men.

The Kansas City Blues slipped and lost a tight game to the Louisville Colonels in ten innings by a score of 3 to 2. Louisville hit 13 times, but few of them were resounding slaps. The Blues hits were little better.

After three run spurges in the fourth inning, St. Paul and Toledo decided their game in the fifth. St. Paul made three more runs. The final score was 6 to 3, with the Saints on the winning side and Lou Fette, Saints pitcher, chalking up his 11th victory of the season.

The Minneapolis Millers lambasted Stout, Columbus hurler, for six runs in the first inning and sent him to the showers.

Remember When?

Two trains collided at Orient killing two trainmen and 88 head of cattle.

This collision occurred on Jan. 12, 1912. Two locomotives and nine cars were wrecked. Six carloads of steers were piled in a heap of bent iron, struggling flesh and splintered wood. Scores of workers pulled the dead and injured cattle from the wreckage and slaughtered them along the tracks.

Two trainmen were killed and a brakeman scalded in the collision.

One who stutters is counselled by a Chicago medical publicist to try a stammer eraser's school. Are they still teaching this?

Jean Arthur, who is featured with Gary Cooper, wears the types of clothes that are "must have" in the average business girl's wardrobe... simple, attractive, serviceable, smart.

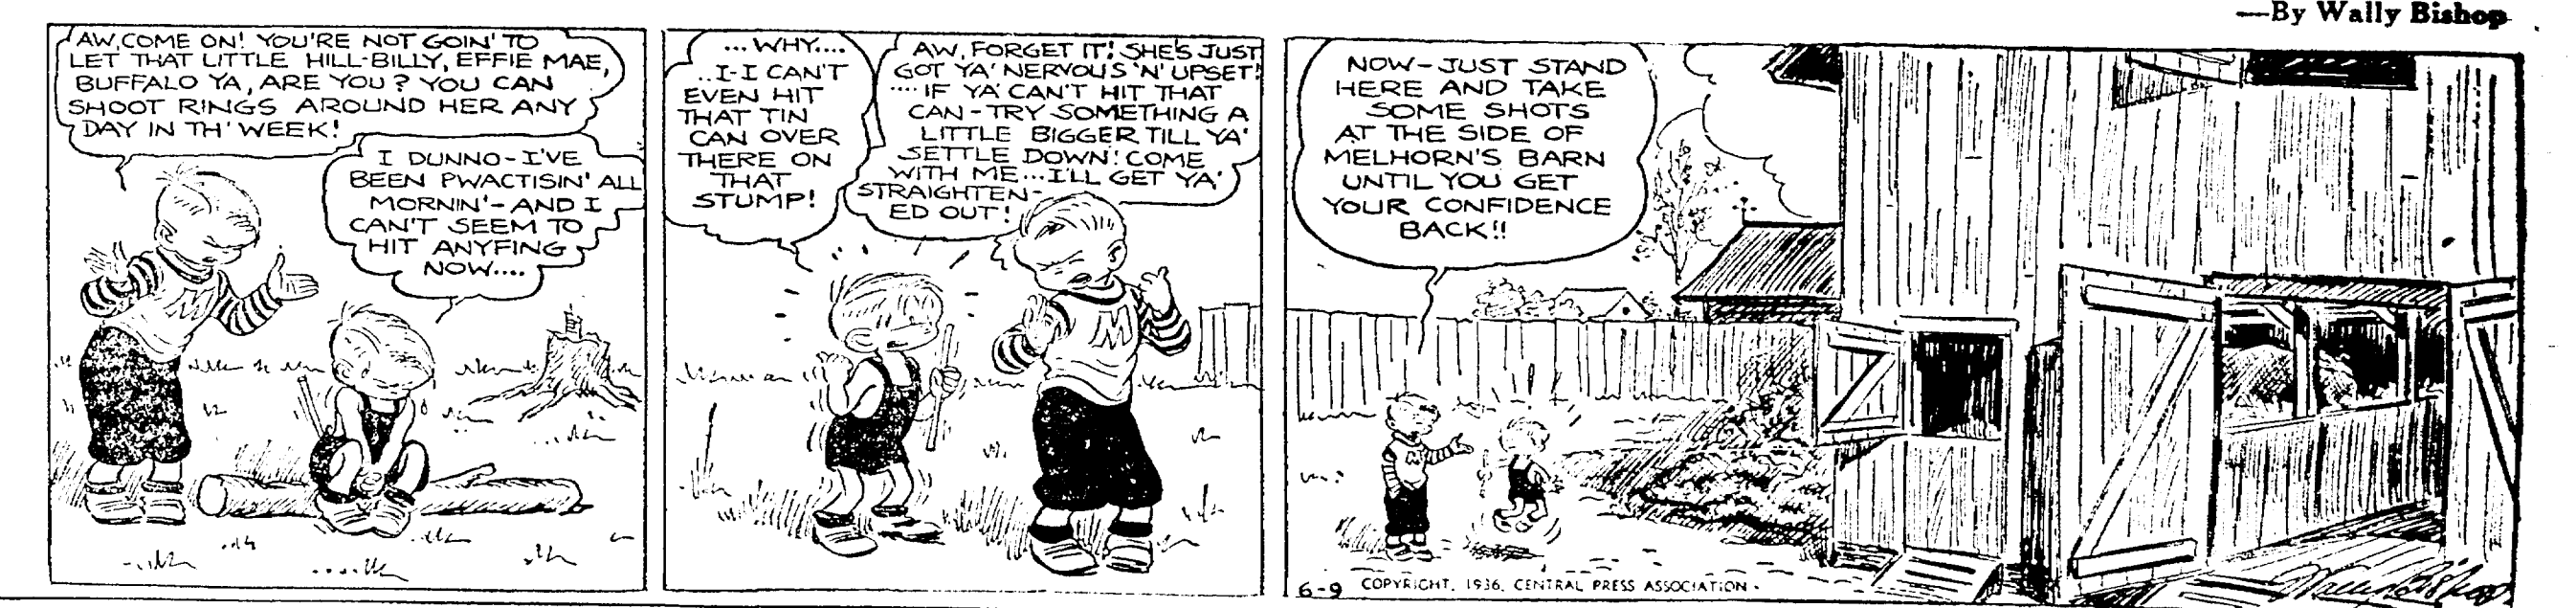

Her double breasted suit is of grey herringbone and black, with pique cravat and cuffs. The jacket is buttoned high, giving it the English reefer effect. The tailored suit is always the foundation of every well-planned wardrobe... it offers so many opportunities for variety... different blouses, scarves, sweaters, accessories... and no business girl should be without one.

Baked Rice Pudding Tea

The meal that is entirely baked in the oven is a fuel saver. The baked rice pudding is made by putting a small amount of rice—say half a cup—into a quart of milk, seasoning with one-half cup of sugar, half a teaspoon of salt, and letting it bake at low temperature for about two hours, stirring occasionally until the last half hour, when the crust that forms over it should be allowed to brown. This makes a creamy rice pudding and you can add raisins, dates, or apples as you wish, during the last part of the baking.

Delay in oat planting in Wyandot-co will result in a greatly increased acreage of soybeans there. County agricultural agent C. R. Crum says farmers in that county need an earlier maturing variety of soybeans than is now available for use in this state.
